

which Christianity teaches, is honestly upheld and followed, in the spirit which becomes the followers of the meek and lowly Jesus, we have abundant cause to believe, that He, who rules over all, will bless the efforts of those who are thus engaged. As they move in reliance upon his goodness and mercy, and without that, which thier hands find to do, they may humbly, yet confidently, commit their cause to his all controlling power, whilst delay, or the adoption of a lower course of proceeding, may hasten those very troubles, which even now might be averted. Under any circumstances, accept our warm encouragement to seek for strength to do right, and boldly to plead the cause of the oppressed, and to urge the total removal of this guilt from a Nation, where civil liberty is so fully partaken of, and so highly prized, by those who enjoy its blessings.

In conclusion, we would further add, that in thus freely communicating our views, we write in much Christian love, and sympathy: We offer them to your serious attention, being well assured of the deep and lively interest which our dear Brethren and Sisters in America have long felt in the termination of Slavery.

May the Lord be pleased to guide your deliberations by his Counsel, and to qualify you to act to the honor of his great, and ever blessed name.

In the love of the Gospel, we are your affectionate Friends, and Brethren.
