The committee appointed to treat with Elizabeth Kempton reported that they had visited her, and she expressed her satisfaction with the meeting she was connected with, and the meeting being of the judgement that further care would not be useful, continued the same friends to unite with men in preparing a testimony of disownment against her if they find no cause to forbear and offer it to next meeting.

The committee relative to Elders reported the subject had continued to claim their attention, and William Procter not being willing to submit to his appointment, was excused at his request. Isaac Brooks is appointed to that station the clerk is directed to unite with mens clerk in ^{signing} a minute expressive thereof to be forwarded to the Quarterly Meeting of ministers and Elders. No way opening for further service at this time the committee is released.

This meeting is informed that the minute of charges against Eliza Smith has been forwarded as directed.

The committee appointed produced a certificate for the minor children of Mary Goldsmith and Eliza Smith which was read approved and directed to be signed on behalf of the meeting.
